The Iris Project

Felix Mayrl and Olivier Colin understand their Iris Project as a contemporary variant of a humanistic photographie: the Iris highlighting the infinite beauty and diversity of people all around the world, as a human prism.

While outlining the uniqueness of individuals they aim at connecting humans through their project.

This apparent opposition generates a tremendous photographic art reflected in the Iris Project.

The IRIS Camera System

A complete Iris-Foto station contains computers, monitors, and a self-developed iris camera system.

With this complex apperature and our dedicated digital post-production we create iris pictures with an outstanding quality level.

Our Atelier

From photoshooting to client shipping, we have full control over the production.

To provide our costumers a longlasting quality we work exclusivly with original Hahnemühle finart papers.

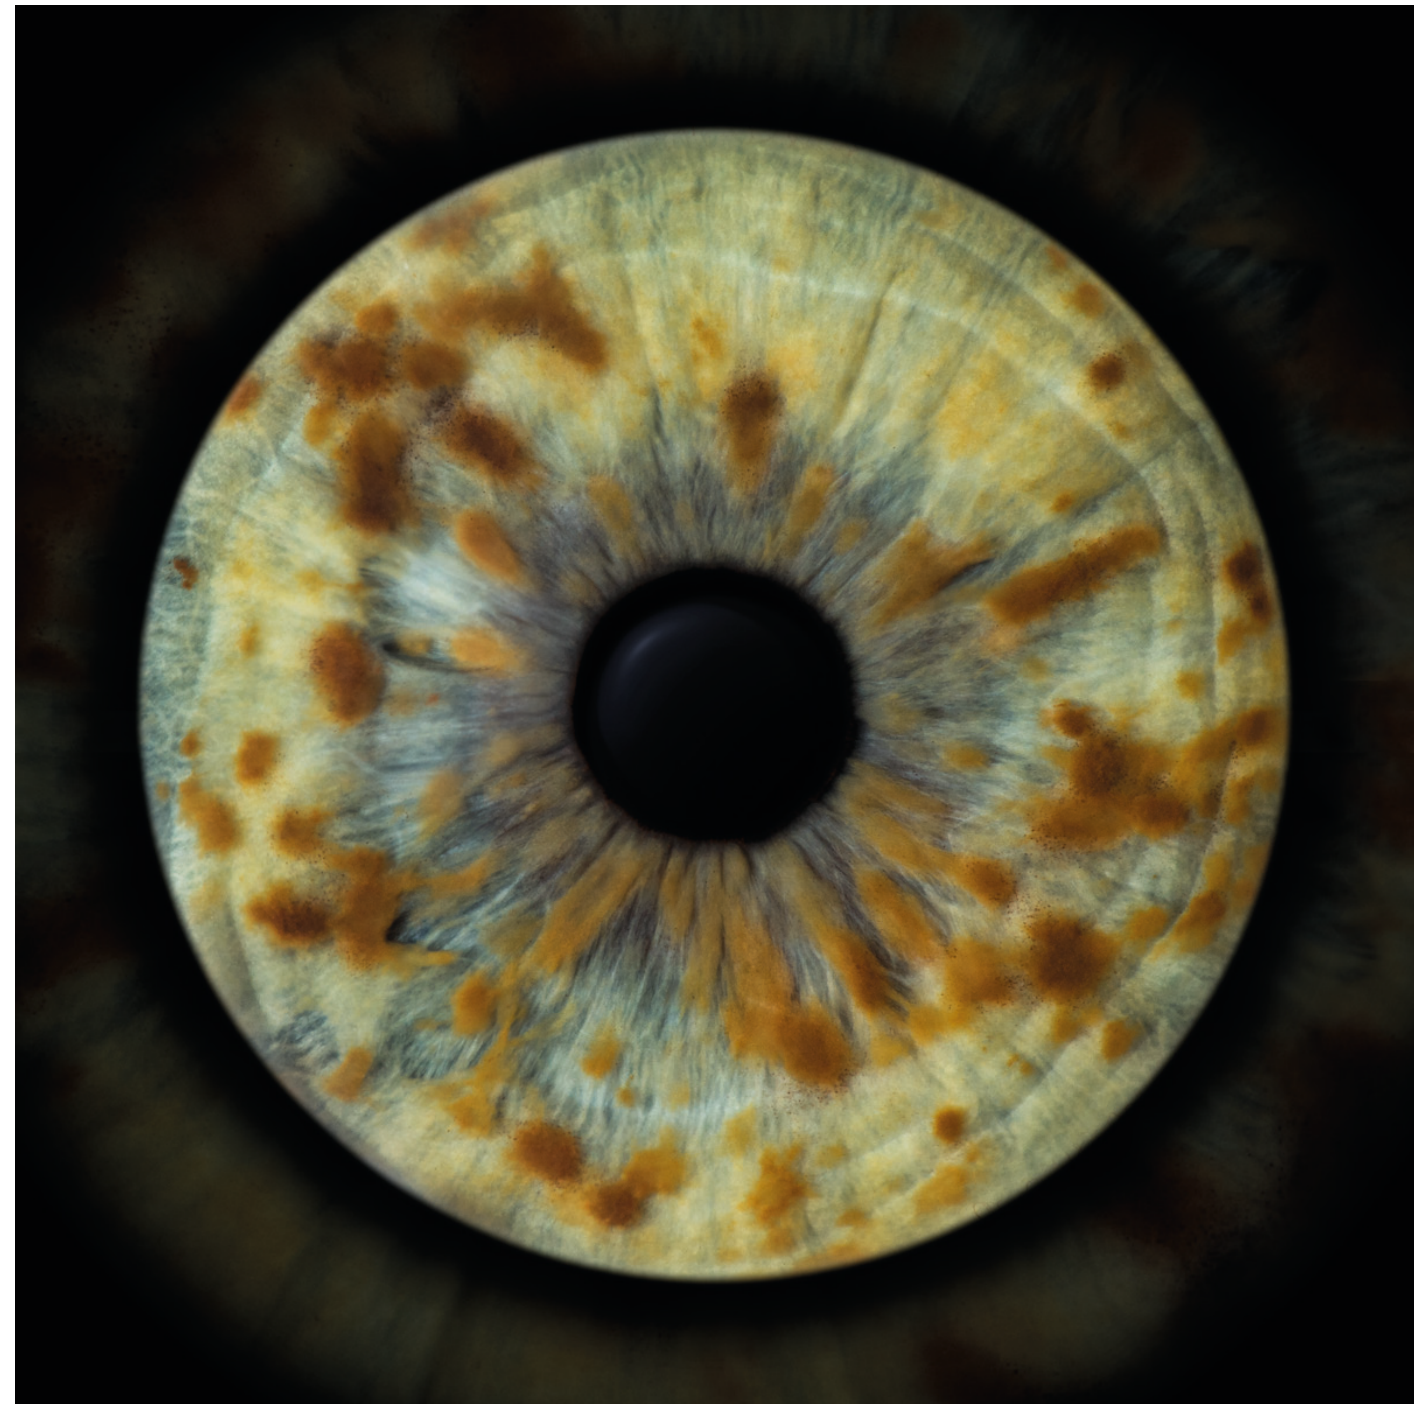

We offer a materials selection from modern aluminium Dibond plate to authentic oak-wood framing with museum glass.

Our expertise and the mastering of the global process ensures the perfect quality on every artwork which leaves our atelier.
